Earthquake Hazard Map

What is Nakai Town's Earthquake Hazard Map?

Using the Earthquake Disaster Prevention Map (earthquake-shaking map) (250 m mesh resolution), published in the Earthquake Damage Estimation Survey conducted by the Kanagawa Prefectural Government, Nakai Town's Earthquake Hazard Map divides the town in 50 m mesh grid and shows the level of shaking of the Earth's surface. The map displays the level of ground shaking as if an earthquake of magnitude 6.8 has struck across Kanagawa, as well as locations of evacuation sites and facilities for people requiring assistance during a disaster, and other information necessary for evacuation. The map does not assume a specific earthquake but displays relative levels of shaking. Therefore, please take note that damage greater than that displayed on the map may be caused.

▼ How to use the map

- Check the level of shaking of your home!
- Check evacuation sites and evacuation routes of your neighborhood!
- Place the Hazard Map where you can always see it, so that you may refer to it whenever necessary!

If an earthquake strikes

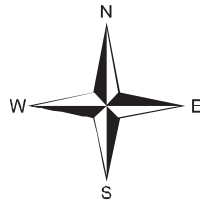

- Take cover under a desk or table, protect your head with a cushion, and wait until the shaking stops!
- Open doors to secure an evacuation route!
- Do not panic and rush outside!

Regarding Nakai Town's Earthquake Hazard Map

Using the Earthquake Disaster Prevention Map (earthquake-shaking map) at a resolution of 250 m mesh, announced by the Kanagawa Prefectural Government, the map has been recreated by dividing the town into 50 m meshes. Consequently, the map does not reflect detailed ground data such as fine geographical block data.
